GLOBAL ANTISEMITISM FOCAL POINTS

A Data-Driven Look at Antisemitism in 2023

In 2023, there was a 58.2% increase in monitored incidents compared to 2022, with the Antisemitism Research Center (ARC) recording 3,046 incidents globally, compared to 1,925 the previous year.

A comprehensive analysis of the 2023 data showed a significant development – incidents of antisemitism from far-left (1,019) and far-right (1,021) sources reached parity. This marked the first-ever occurrence of such an alignment, with each ideology contributing 33.5% to the total monitored incidents.

CST Finds UK Antisemitic Hate Incidents Hit New High in 2023

The Community Security Trust (CST) recorded reports of 4,103 anti-Jewish hate incidents in 2023, up from 1,662 in 2022 and almost double the previous record of 2,255 hit in 2021. This included 416 incidents reported to the CST, which works to protect British Jews from antisemitism, in the week following the attacks - the largest number than any subsequent week.

CST's annual report also indicated that university-related antisemitic incidents more than tripled, from 60 in 2022 to 182 in 2023. Additionally, there was at least one antisemitic incident in every police region in the UK for the first time.

Denmark Records Highest Number of Antisemitic Incidents Since WWII

The number of antisemitic incidents registered in Denmark since the October 7 attack on Israel has reached levels not seen since World War II.

121 incidents were recorded, including 20 death threats. Most of the cases involved hate messages, more than half of them online.

Further highlighting the extent of the threat of antisemitism, Jews in Denmark were advised not to wear Jewish symbols openly. Jewish Community leader Henri Goldstein remarked, "We have seen the biggest antisemitic wave in Denmark since 1943."
